Hasten, then, to improve the time which remains, that you may figure in the worthy roll-call of the poor children's benefactors.

HANS, THE NON-CLEANER.

The Fassett Committee undertook a large | todger de main ? contract when it set out to discover from Mr. BEATTIE why he does not keep the streets of New York clean, since he is paid for doing this, and has accepted a position which entails this duty upon him. Mr. BEATTIE said what he has so often said before: There isn't money enough, and anyhow there is more cleaning done than there used to be.

It is hard for New Yorkers to understand why, with Mr. BEATTIE's accession to office, the town developed a greater tendency to producing dirt. If there isn't money Esstern one! enough to clean the streets, why, there should be more. The streets have got to Se cleaned. There is no way out of that should have been both turkey and reed-bird. ### THE CLEANER.

The recent prominence given to Capt. Zalineki, of the United States Army, reminds me of an incident when he was a new second licutement at Fortress Monroe. Some sesign-ments to duty had been made which would send three or four officers, Zalineki among them, to Key West and Dry Tortugae in the height of the yellow fever season. There was much adverse criticism among the officera and one adverting to Zalinski intimated tha the stripling Lieutenant's personal courage was unequal to the assignment. The next evening, after dress parade, when all the offcers in the garrison were assembled about the commanding officer, Zalinski deliberatery slapped his detractor's face, and spent the in tervening time before his departure for Florid in close arrest. He was not challenged.
